

Questions to think about as you consider options for your child

- Is there a daily plan to guide learning? Does the schedule include an appropriate amount of play time, rest time, learning activities?
- How many children will be in the classroom?
- Are additional adults available to help in the classroom?
- What are the opportunities for family involvement?
- How does the outdoor play environment support physical development?
- Are children expected to sit at tables or desks? For how long?
- Has your child experienced play groups and/or separation from parents for extended time?
- Does your child communicate personal needs like using the restroom?
- How do the teachers support the child's home language?
- How is children's play integrated into daily learning activities?
- Are teachers and children engaged in conversations?
- Do the children appear to enjoy the learning?
- Does the classroom include learning focuses, i.e., early literacy, math, etc.?

Things families should keep in mind:

- Cost of program or eligibility
- Parent and child expectations
- Before and after school care
- Length of day
- Hours/months of operation
- Student support services
- Readiness of your child
- Transportation
- Meals
- Overall Program Experience

Best
Program for
Your Four-
Year Old!

Family Guide for Universal Prekindergarten (UPK)

Parents of 4-year-olds are being given a unique range of educational options for their children in California.

Attending a high-quality early education program prepares children to develop critical social-emotional, cognitive, and early academic skills to be ready for kindergarten and beyond.

Finding the best option for your child takes time and research. You know your child best.

UNIVERSAL PRE-KINDERGARTEN OPTIONS FOR A FOUR-YEAR-OLD

High quality programs create early learning experiences, environments, and relationships that support children's growth and development.

High Quality Early Learning Experiences:

- Fulfills child's curiosity; positively impacts academic performance.
- Provides discipline and structure balanced with fun.
- Builds child's desire to learn.
- Provides opportunities for physical activity.
- Builds social and emotional development by increasing positive behavior, self-worth, and confidence.
